// Assignment from a long double using a formatting string and the

// This function allows you to specify number formatting strings using
// a standard NumberParts table, and then obtain format records that
// use the local System NumberParts as specified by the user.
//
// For example, assuming that 'NoPt' resource 200 is a standard US
// NumberParts table,
//
// myString.Assign(1234.56, "\p###,###.##", 200);
//
// On a machine with US number formatting, myString will be "1,234.56".
// On a machine with Danish number formatting, myString will be
// "1.234,56" (Danish use 1602 the thousands separator and ',' as // the decimal point).
//
// However, if you use the Assign() routine above:
//
// myString.Assign(1234.56, "\p###,###.##");
//
// This will correctly set myString to "1,234.56" on a machine with // US number formatting. But will not work for Danish number formatting,
// where the format string is invalid.
// utFormatResult may be nil. If so, not format result is passed back.
